VOLUME XXI—NO. 176

CHARLEROI, WASHINGTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1920

TWO CENTS

WORK MAY SOON BEGIN ON RAILROAD LINE UP MINGO CREEK

Application Made To Interstate Commerce Commission to begin Construction

BUILD THREE MILES AT PRESENT

The Mingo Valley Railroad Company has given notice that on the 14th day of December 1920, it filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, its application for a certificate of public necessity and convenience to construct a line of railroad in Pennsylvania.

In its application the railroad company sets forth that it is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the state of Pennsylvania and is now asking permission to immediately construct and operate approximately three miles of its road extending from its terminus on the Monongahela river, near the mouth of Mingo creek, to a point approximately three miles distant up Mingo creek. It further sets forth that the location, route and termini of that portion of the company's road which it now proposes to construct and operate, begins at its terminus on the Monongahela river near the mouth of Mingo creek, at which point a physical connection will be made with the Monongahela Division of the Pennsylvania railroad and then to extend up Mingo creek the distance as set forth above, and to end for the present at a point where a new coal mine is to be opened by the Pittsburgh Coal company.

Under its charter the Mingo Valley Railroad company is authorized to construct and operate a line of railroad running from near the mouth of Mingo creek to a connection with the Montour Railroad company by the way of Mingo creek. The purpose of the organization of that company is to furnish a connection between the Montour Railroad company and the Monongahela Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Monongahela river, where a terminal property has already been provided for by the Mingo company, thus giving greater facilities for the handling of traffic on the Montour Railroad, and to furnish adequate transportation outlet available.

The Mingo Valley Railroad company asks a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission on this application, which if granted, will permit the company to begin active construction work on the project, which will incidentally mean the opening of another large field of virgin coal in this county. It has been estimated that the United States Steel Corporation will also begin operations looking toward the development of a large tract of coal in the same district, and as a preliminary had taken over the workings of the Star Mine, located a short distance up Mingo creek, but which are so located as to shut off the outlet to the railroad and the river had they not been taken over.

It looks as if there is going to be some very important coal develop-

THE RINGMASTER

Suggest Change In Name For Our Civic Organization

Activities in connection with the plans for the expansion of the Charleroi Board of Trade have given rise to the suggestion that the name of the organization be changed to something more accurately descriptive of the character of the new association.

"Some day somebody is going to win the eternal gratitude of some millions of progressive people by inventing a name for a civic-commercial organization which shall express in three or four words the precise nature of the new type of community associations which is rapidly supplanting the old boards of trade and chambers of commerce," said Jno. B. Schafer today.

The chief argument made against retaining the present name of the organization is its failure to express the character of the association which is proposed—one composed of citizens generally instead of business men exclusively, and one concerned with the welfare of Charleroi from every angle rather than from a trade standpoint alone.

The name "community association" has been growing in favor throughout the country, but even that does not meet the need. For "community," like "civic," implies a limitation which repels the business man whose interests after all include both his business and the well being of the community in something like equal proportions.

An interesting experience in this connection is recalled by one of the men now in Charleroi assisting the local committees in the preparations Continued on page four.

BIG FARM ACREAGE TAKEN OVER FOR MODEL MINING-TOWN

HOLD-UP REPORTED FROM LOCK FOUR

A man named Lawrine of Monessen, while on his way from Lock 4 to Charleroi was held up by two men in front of the Coyle residence, North Charleroi about 8 o'clock last night. The two highwaymen wore overcoats and slouch hats, and suddenly stepped in front of the man pointing a gun at him and demanding his money. The robbers went through his clothes, but obtained nothing. The man went into the Coyle residence and called the Charleroi police, who made a search for the robbers, but no trace of them could be found. One man was described as being tall and the other short.

Three Farms at Ginger Hill Purchased By The Frick Coke Company

WILL DEVELOP BIG COAL FIELD

A big real estate deal was closed at Ginger Hill, this county, on Wednesday, whereby the Frick Coke company becomes the possessor of about 500 acres of land, upon which it is believed a model mining town will be erected. Three farms are included in the deal, the Elizabeth Coulson, the Charles Williams and Samuel Keenan acreage, all of them being contiguous, and situated at a point about four miles from Monongahela, on the Williamsport pike.

The Mail, a few weeks ago, carried a story in which this deal was then outlined, although at the time nothing definite had been done. Now that the deal is made and the farms purchased, it indicates that the Frick company expects to begin shortly the development of the large tract of coal consisting of over 15,000 acres and which extends back as far as Eighty-Four.

It is intimated that a shaft will be sunk in the vicinity of Ginger Hill, which will give ingress and egress to the men working in the new mines and work thereon is expected to begin some time during the new year. The old workings of the Star mine, recently taken over by the Frick Coke company, are being cleaned up and preparations are being made, it is said, for a number of new openings. One or more of these will likely open on the river and rail in New Eagle borough, a short distance from the Riverview switch.

This deal, together with the proposed extension of the Mingo Valley Railroad, promises to make the eastern section of Washington county, in the vicinity of Monongahela, a very busy district during the year 1921.

WHALE IS CHAMPION JUMPER

Mammal Easily Holds All Records When It Comes to a Question of High Leaping.

If you were asked the question: "What animal can jump the highest?" you would in all likelihood, guess wrong. It is the whale!

Oh, yes, the whale is a mammal, not a fish, and he can jump out of the water to a height of 25 feet with the greatest ease. This is about twice as high as the tiger, who can manage about 12½ feet to 13 feet. A dog has been known to clear 10 feet, and the horse follows next with 7 feet 8½ inches.

Man's record high jump was made in 1914 by a Californian, who reached 6 feet 7½ inches. In 1913, the tremendous height of 5 feet 5½ inches was attained for the standing high jump, though in 1892 a man reached 6 feet, with weights, at this jump.

As regards the long jump, without weights, the record, 24 feet 11½ inches, was made in 1901, and it has now stood for nearly twenty years.

The longest jump backwards, with weights, is 12 feet 11 inches, and the holder of this record also holds that of the standing long jump, without weights, with 12 feet 1½ inches.

Of animals, one might expect the kangaroo to hold the record, but he can only manage 15 feet—ten less than man—though, talking of long jumps, how about the grasshopper? He can jump 200 times his own length.

GAUDY COSTUME HIS FOIBLE

Marshal Murat, Napoleon's Famous Cavalry Leader, Seemingly Had "Craze for 'Fine Feathers'."

Marshal Murat was the dandy among Napoleon's generals. One Paris tailor said that in some years he had made as much as 100,000 francs' worth of suits, overcoats and uniforms for Murat. He liked to invent new and fantastic uniforms, he strutted about in a suit of sky-blue overalls covered all over with gold spangles, and he decorated his bushy with aigrettes. On the occasion of his triumphant entry into Warsaw when he supposed he would be made king of Poland, he wore an impossible looking uniform, red leather boots, tunic of cloth of gold, sword belt blazing with diamonds, and a great bushy of fur decked out with costly plumes. On this occasion Napoleon lost his temper and testily exclaimed to his general: "Go and put on your proper uniform; you look like a clown." But the emperor was not misled by Murat's love of finery, for it is recorded that he once said of him: "You may snuff at my dandified marshal, but you will notice that when columns are shot down today, Murat's gaudy plume will be dancing in the hottest of the fight. Let a hero have one folly, gentlemen."

Spruce and Hemlock.

It is not difficult to distinguish between spruce and hemlock in the forest, when one learns to notice the following points: The spruce has stiff pointed leaves (or short needles), its bark scales are never bright red, and the cones—smaller than those of the pine—hang down on the branches. The hemlock, on the other hand, has soft flat needles, often two-ranked that is, growing on two sides of the stem, so that the sprig has a flattened appearance; hemlock bark scales look red, when broken off, and the dainty little cones stand erect on their branches, falling apart soon after ripening, so that no old cones long remain on or under the trees where they grew. Lumber from the two trees may be distinguished by remembering that that of the spruce is white in color, while hemlock wood retains its faint reddish tint.

What Chance Did Dad Have?

"Dad, I lost my commutation ticket today. It slipped out the car window. Will you please give me money enough to get a ten-ride ticket? There are only five more working days in the month, so I'll need only the ten rides. Now, dad, you can't ask me to take it out of my allowances. It simply can't be done. Anyhow, one of your old corporations declared a dividend recently, and I didn't have to ask you for any money for two weeks. That saved you $50, and the ticket is only $10. Why, dad, you are $25 ahead at that! You're making money off your own son! You can't do that! It isn't being done this year. . . . I knew you would feel as I do about it. Thank you, dad."—Indianapolis News.

Emperor's Splendid Tomb.

The body of Napoleon III lies in a tomb in the church of St. Michael at Farnborough, England. This chapel was built by ex-Empress Eugenie as a memorial to her husband. In the crypt also is placed the tomb of her son, the Prince Imperial, who was killed while fighting with the English army in Zululand. The church is a magnificent building of white stone, and stands on the brow of a hill. It is surmounted by a tower and pinnacled with dozens of small shafts. The empress used to visit the chapel daily. Ten priests were constantly employed by her to say masses for the dead.

REAL TURK NOT MONEY MAD

Recognizes There Are Higher Things in Life Than Practicing Buying and Selling.

The real Turk, unlike the so-called mongrel Turk, does not have to impress his sense of superiority on others. And, although the latter is always eager to do business with you, according to Mr. Herbert Gibbons in Asia, the real Turk is often quite indifferent.

Some real Anatolian Turks are merchants and sit in the bazaars. But they will not go out of their way to make a sale, and they really do not care whether you buy or not. Often they ignore strangers; sometimes they rebuff them. When you meet with this type in the bazaars where all the Jews and Gentiles are hard after your money, it is like a dash of cold water in your face.

Once in a little open shop I saw a rug that attracted me. I started to enter, but the crouched figure on the mat put out a long-fingered left hand, grasped firmly my ankle, and removed my foot outside the threshold. I thought there must be some superstition about which foot went first; so I tried the other. The same left hand proved again its strength. All the while the merchant did not speak or look up. His right hand was stringing beads, and he was smoking a nargile.

He simply did not want to bother with me, and my shoe told him that I was a franga (European). Later I got to know that old bird, and we laughed over stories together. But he never asked me to buy anything, and I did not want to risk his friendship by making a second try for the rug. There are more important things in life than buying and selling.

"SQUEEZE" POPULAR IN CHINA

What the Western World Calls "Graft" Is Practiced by All Classes in That Country.

One trait firmly imbedded in the Chinese character which the foreign business man and the housewife both have to contend with is the weakness for "squeeze." It is said by foreigners that the Chinese merchant, coolie, politician, fisherman, chauffeur and beggar would rather make $1 by "squeeze" than $10 by the same amount of brain work or manual labor.

Squeeze is Chinese for graft. It is a word in that international Far Eastern tongue known as pidgin-English. But squeeze is something more than graft. Its political phase might be termed graft, and that form of squeeze is what makes the military governors of the provinces and the politicians of Peking and Canton so fat. Most Chinese politicians would have been acceptable in the eyes of Julius Caesar, and squeeze is the reason for some of the corruption in China.

Squeeze is the Chinese translation of "as much as the traffic will bear." It is a factor in Chinese business, as much as supply and demand, or profit and loss.

Tapestry in History.

During the Italian Renaissance the art developed in subtle treatment of color and shading, and Flemish tapestry reached its height of artistic perfection in the magnificent pieces from cartoons by Raphael and other Italian masters.

Royalty supported the industry at this period. Incidents of history were woven into design with threads of gold and silver, and even jewels. Others were mellowed by soft colorings of wool, with their high lights supplied by silken threads. The dyes, often as costly as the gold and silver, have held their colors for centuries, and it has been beyond the modern chemist to solve their alchemy. No such colors can be produced today, nor none that are so unfading. When tapestry making waned in Brussels, France developed the art, and under Henry IV and Louis XIV the Gobelins were famed for their perfection of workmanship and color.

An Apple a Day.

"They tell us," said Mr. Billtops, "that an apple a day keeps the doctor away, and I guess that is so; I am sure that an apple a night promotes sound and restful slumber."

"We keep our apples in the icebox. The last thing that Mrs. Billtops, ever-thoughtful Mrs. Billtops, does in making her rounds before retiring for the night is to get an apple out of the icebox and place it, with a fruit knife, on the dining-room table for me."

"Nightly the last thing I do before going to bed is to go out into the dining room, seat myself comfortably, and eat that apple; leisurely. I find it cool and refreshing; in every way agreeable; and having eaten it I turn in and sleep delightfully."

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away. An apple at night makes you sleep right."

Exclusive Organization.

Though legendarily reputed to be more than 1,000 years old, the Order of the Thistle was founded by James II in 1657. After the revolution, says the London Star, it fell into desuetude, but was revived by Queen Anne in 1703. The chapel of the order, in St. Giles' cathedral, where the king attended service on Sunday, was not commenced until 1699.

The Thistle is one of the most exclusive orders. Its only members being the king and 18 knights. The motto of the order is: "Wla daur meddie."

ORANG FEARED THE CAMERA

Photographer's Presence of Mind Probably Saved Him From Death or Fearful Injury.

As a rule orangutangs, the fiercest of the apes, are caught young and tamed before they are shipped to Europe and the United States. One of these animals that arrived in London came with the best of characters. He was considered a very tame, steady-going creature, and an expert was engaged to photograph him.

The man entered the orang's cage as he had entered many others. He had not exposed many plates before he saw that the animal was intent on mischief. He was a very powerful beast, and the man would have stood no chance at all if the orang had attacked him.

The man's only chance was to use the camera as a weapon. Making a sign to the keeper to keep silent, the photographer pointed his hand camera at the orang and with slow and steady step approached him. The keeper was outside the door ready to open it; but neither of them uttered a sound. The photographer was relieved to see the orang gradually retreat and at the same time to be able to rise from the crouched and menacing position it had taken. Once the creature was on the move the man knew he had a chance. He succeeded in working the orang around to the corner furthest from the door, which the keeper had silently and slowly opened. Still noting his camera at the beast the man very slowly backed out of the cage, the door was slammed to and he was safe.

COMPLETE WORK OF TODAY

Unfinished Tasks Simply Mean That One Has Picked a Mortgage on His Tomorrow.

Leave today's work undone and you mortgage tomorrow. And tomorrow may bring the big opportunity you have been looking for so long.

Try to keep tomorrow for yourself. Try to keep it free. Don't load it up with work that should be done when you leave your desk tonight.

You never know what it may bring. You never know what chances there may be tomorrow—if you have it clear—to show somebody who can pay a big salary what you can do.

Your days are important, every one of them. Each has its own work that must be done.

Start every day with a clean sheet. Say: "This is the work that is to be done today—that must be done today."

Then do that work, and do not leave any of it hanging over into the next day.

Once fall behind in your work and your tomorrow will soon be mortgaged for a long way ahead. That means wage slavery. It means lack of a chance to seize opportunity—or to make opportunity.

Look forward to your tomorrows as days of achievement—days in which to plan and do new tasks—not to finish old ones.

You will be glad to see them then. You will be glad of the fresh eight hours that can be employed in something that is valuable and interesting.

—John Blake, in Chicago Daily News.

Burro Saw the Point.

One who knows says that some people claim that animals can't reason, but if they were around burros awhile like he was when he ran a burro train in Colorado they'd change their minds.

One of the burros fell down in crossing a stream and he was loaded with sugar and he took about fifteen minutes to get him on his feet and his foot didn't weigh more than half as much when they started out again.

For months afterward that critter always contrived to fall down when crossing a stream of water.

It didn't lighten his load any, for the driver never trusted him with sugar any more, but he still had hopes until they happened to load him with sponges one day.

That cured him. — Los Angeles Times.

FOOT TROUBLE

Discomfort and Inefficiency come of Sore, Swollen Feet

For reasons of custom and cleanliness, we encase our feet in leather all day long. No wonder they swell and hurt and make us miserable.

But the right kind of attention works wonders with them. Do this and see how fine your feet feel before retiring: bathe them in hot water and dry—that gets the pores open. Then, apply Krew-Pina—don't be afraid to rub it in—it won't blister. Next morning, note that the soreness has all been driven out and the callous places softened so the pressure of the shoes doesn't cause a single twinge.

Krew-Pina is the celebrated household ointment of simple home remedies such as Oil of Pine and other volatile oils in a petroleum base. A powerful preventative and alleviative agent that is absolutely harmless. Keep it in the medicine chest for quick relief in cases of cold, sore throat, bronchitis, croup, coughs and whooping cough, stiffness, lame back, bruises and stone bruises, burns, cuts, etc. 30c and 60c jars—at your druggist's.

TEACHERS

In the matter of schools and education the people of the United States have had of late a chance to learn a lesson which it would be well to take to heart. Mr. P. P. Claxton, federal commissioner of education, in his annual report, says that while we shall need at once between 110,000 and 150,000 teachers, "we shall have at the outside less than 30,000 teachers available." Nor is this shortage to be made up easily. At the very least it takes two years of normal school training and several years of experience to make any one qualified to teach. So that even though we did increase salaries in 1919 and 1920, it will take some little time before conditions right themselves in the teaching profession.

KEEPING FAITH

President-elect Harding is developing a tendency to regard campaign pledges as made to be kept, in a manner most disconcerting to those who would like to bring discredit upon him and the Republican party. When he called Vice President Coolidge to Marion recently and discussed with him future policies of the next administration, he did what he said he would do when Coolidge was nominated. It is a fine thing to note the spirit of co-operation between the two men, and to realize that the office of Vice President is to be lifted at last to a place of real dignity and usefulness in the official life of the nation.

Appeal That All Understand

The variety of languages is one of the marvels and mysteries, yet beyond the grammar and the etymology there is forever a fundamental fact—that men are brothers in the blood, bound to help and to serve one another in time of need. Nutritive Value of Tomatoes

The nutritive value of tomatoes is slight. But because they contain valuable mineral salts and acids, due to their delightful flavor, tomatoes have become very popular as an article of food. Tomatoes are composed of nearly 95 per cent water, leaving very little solid food to contain the elements that give the greatest nutrition, such as proteins, carbohydrates and fats.

Little two-and-a-half-year-old Bud accompanied his parents for the first time to a movie. "He seemed very interested, especially when a horse or a 'beel' was flashed on the screen, but a cry of delight came when a colored man appeared. 'Muy-er, dere's our ice man,' he said. He was glad to see a face he thought he knew."

Heard in New England

Many primitive New England sayings are restricted wholly to the agricultural population, and among these are utterances whose provincialism is not apparent to the speaker whose ear has become familiar to them. "Get out" is commonly used to express incredulity and in remote districts "du tell" is still good form in the best circles.

Moody Persons

You must not allow yourself to feel discouraged because of your moods and because people don't understand them. As a matter of fact very few people understand any person who is a child of moods—because such people are always the most unusual. And it takes unusual people to understand unusual people.—Exchange.

Plant Growth

It is said that the length of the day rather than the temperature affect the growth of plants. Iris given 18 hours of light every day bloomed two months earlier than similar plants which experienced only the day of natural length. This was proved in some government experiments.

Must Have Some Human Qualities

We must have a weak spot or two in a character before we can love it much. People that do not laugh or cry or take more of anything than is good for them, or use anything but dictionary words are admirable subjects for biographers.—O. W. Holmes.

Sharing Mother's Old Dresses

Mary Jane was very proud, and never liked wearing dresses made from her mother's old ones; so when she saw her new baby brother for the first time she remarked to her father: "I wonder how he'll like wearin' your old clothes?"

Folly of Selfishness

To be selfish is to be ignoble—to repose on a lower platform for lower gain, when you might choose a higher. To be selfish is to sacrifice the nobler for the meaner ends, and to be sordidly content.—H. R. Haweis.

"Old King Cole," beloved of the nursery, was a British king who lived about A. D. 300. His accession was hailed with joy. To this day a large earthenware at Colchester is called "King Cole's Kitchen."

Walls No Bar to Wireless

The antennae of the wireless station in the cathedral of Florence, Italy, are entirely within the building, yet work satisfactorily, though the wireless waves pass through several thick walls.

Money Not All-Powerful

Money, in truth, can do much, but it cannot do all. We must know the province of it and confine it there, and even spare it back when it wishes to get farther.—Carlyle.

Vagrant Philosophy

"What a lot of uninteresting people we can see on the streets," remarked the Occasional Philosopher. "And, to be fair, I suppose I am one of them."

Personality

The greatest and most vital power in influencing life is personality. It is greater than law, instruction or example.—Lyman Abbott.

JURY RETURNS A VERDICT OF SUICIDE

A coroner's jury composed of George Newton, E. W. Elliott, L. R. Walters, Harry Laughlin, David Duall and Albert Eertsche, held an inquest at the Crowley underraking rooms at 10 o'clock this morning to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Letitia Coven at Warner, Sunday, December 26. After hearing a number of witnesses the jury returned a verdict, finding that the deceased came to her death by suicide by shooting herself in the head with a 32-calibre revolver. Warren S. Burchinal, assistant district attorney, was present for the commonwealth, and D. M. McCloskey represented the defendant, Harry Coven, who has been detained by the police during the week. Coroner Greenlee was in charge of the hearing.

MARRIED AT THE HOME OF BRIDE'S UNCLE

The marriage of Wm. Hanel, Jr., and Miss Goldie Wilson occurred at the home of her uncle, J. E. Lemington, 134 McKean avenue, Wednesday, December 29. The groom is an employee of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, while the bride was formerly a student of the Waynesburg High school. The bride was attired in a beautiful blue georgette over pink satin, which gave a very charming effect. The young couple will reside in Charlottesville.

BARN BURNED IN FALLOWFIELD TOWNSHIP

A barn on the farm of John Snyder in Fallowfield township was destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. Along with the barn a quantity of hay and other farm products were destroyed. No machinery, however, was in the building. The Charlottesville fire department was summoned, leaving the engine house about 3:30 and rendered all possible assistance.

LARGEST CHANGE IN NAME

or the expansion of the Board of Trade.

London, Ont., conducted a very successful expansion effort about two years ago. The name of the existing organization was board of trade. It was so lacking in descriptive qualities for the new body that a general demand arose for a change.

Each of the 900 members was asked to make one suggestion of a new name. About 30 names were suggested. These were listed alphabetically on a ballot and each member was again asked to vote for one, the statement being made that the name receiving the highest vote would be adopted.

"Chamber of Commerce" won by a substantial margin.

Many of those who voted for "chamber of commerce" expressed disapproval of the name but confessed they did not know of a better one. Summarized, the argument for "chamber of commerce" was that it was the best known name for such an organization; that it was so well known there never was any confusion in the public mind as to what was meant; that strangers and even "natives" almost invariably ask for the "chamber of commerce;" that until a better name has been found, this is the only best one.

Recognition of the reorganization which has been adopted for the Charlottesville Board of Trade has also been taken into consideration in connection with the suggestion that the name be changed. The subject has been discussed by several men and they agree that "chamber of commerce" is preferable to "board of trade."

It has therefore been determined that the expansion effort now in hand shall be carried on in the name of the Charlottesville Chamber of Commerce; this action to be subject to the approval of the membership at its first meeting.

The Rt. Rev. Cortland Whitehead, Bishop of Pittsburgh will administer confirmation and preach at St. Mary's on Sunday.

New England Folklore.
The folklores of New England is not confined to rural communities, nor to the illiterate—not by any manner of means. And it's safe to say that the reader, if a New Englander, will not protest the "any manner of means." Who in Rhode Island does not know that a "cat-nap" is a short doze or that a "whopper" is a big lie? "What are you driving at?" is as staple as baked beans on Sunday morning, and "What are you going to 'tax' me?" is a daily inquiry.—Boston Globe.

Why Eye Shades Are Used

The purpose of the eye shade is to shield the eye from harmful brilliancies in the field of view. In lighting from poorly concealed sources these brilliancies are, in many cases, 600,000 to 800,000 times as great as the brightness of the printed page. Their images, falling on the dark adapted and highly sensitized peripheral retina, cause great discomfort and interfere profoundly with the muscular adjustment of the eye needed for clear seeing.

Overcoming Obstacles

Obstacles look large or small to the man in proportion to his strength and determination to master them. If a little man, they look large; if a large man, difficulties look small in comparison with the advantage of what he longs for and what he proposes. The harder things go the greater the obstacle, the greater is the persistence and grit to annihilate them.—Orison Swett Marden in Chicago News.

Foolish Fancy

From a novel: "Fanny was intensely sympathetic; even the lonesomeness of the goldfish in the parlor saddened her." Sheer waste of sympathy, this. Would the little beggars be continually wagging their tails if they were unhappy? Certainly not. Far from pitying them, we envy them; they can take a trip around the globe whenever they feel like it.—Boston Transcript.

"Swan Songs"

There is an old superstition that the swan breaks into song at the approach of death. Hence the expression "swan song" is often used to refer to a last poem or musical work written just before the composer's death. The expression has also extended to apply to the last speech of a politician before being forced into obscurity.

Memorial to an Apple

There is a monument of stone with a bronze tablet which marks the spot where the York Imperial apple was developed from a seedling 100 years ago. The monument is erected on a farm along the Baltimore pike, two miles from York, Pa., and was dedicated a few days ago.

The gambling instinct is in nearly every energetic, ambitious person, and few can resist the temptation to back a "sure thing." There is nothing amazing about investors taking a chance at any scheme. The amazing thing is human nature.—Indianapolis News.

Symbol of Holy Roman Empire

The double-headed eagle of the Holy Roman empire was sometimes crowned and sometimes bore the albus upon it. The dual heads represented dominion over the east and the west and came to be used in the coat of arms of both Austria and Russia.

SEASON WILL OPEN FOR BASKET BALL

Local basket ball fans are all set for the initiatory contest of the 1920-21 season, which is to occur at the high school gymnasium, this evening when the Alumni representatives will try conclusions with the Charleoi high school aggregation. The game in itself, promises to develop into one of the best exhibitions ever seen on the local floor. The athletes who will participate compromise as formidable a collection as might be gotten together on any scholastic floor, and basket ball, clean and wholesome, will be the order of things from the start of the game to its finish. A preliminary, between the girls of the Alumni and this year's team, will take place, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Lloyd Wagner will be the referee.

MANY ATTEND THE MILLER LECTURE

There was a good attendance at the high school auditorium, last evening to listen to Prof. Kelly Miller, dean of Howard University, in his lecture on "Loyalty of the Negro." The speaker of the evening, who is an author of note, as well as one who is generally recognized as among the foremost educators in negro circles, delivered an interesting and forceful address, and was listened to with rapt attention. He has been identified with the faculty of Howard University, at Washington, D. C., for a number of years, and, by precept and example, coupled with his pronounced efforts for the progress of his race, has endeared himself to his people. Prof. Miller's appearance in Charlottesville was made possible through the enterprise of the trustees of St. James A. M. E. Church, who are deserving of thanks for the pleasant evening afforded.

Prof. T. L. Pollock returned this morning from Harrisburg, where he had been attending the annual convention of the State Educational Association.

CHILD SUFFERING FROM SEVERE BURNS

The explosion of a can of disinfectant at the East End hotel, Belle Vernon, last night about 7:30 o'clock, seriously burned a little daughter of the proprietor, Charles Brenkus. The child had been placed in a cellar way leading from the office, but what caused it to explode is not known. The little girl was badly burned about the face and hands, and the physicians say it will be a couple of days before being able to determine whether the child inhaled any of the flames. The father was painfully burned about the face and hands when he went to the rescue of the little daughter. She was in the room alone at the time of the explosion, and her clothing caught fire from the flames.

"GALLERY GODS" HAD POWER

Actors Respected Those Who Sat Among the Clouds in Old Drury Lane Theater, London.

Nearly every American has at some time in his career, generally the earlier part of it, been a "gallery god." That is to say, he has seated himself high in the topmost gallery of a theater, to follow with tenseness the adventures of the heroine and hero. How he obtained his title of "gallery god" is a matter that goes back a great many years, to the old English Drury Lane theater in London.

The theater was decorated in a somewhat giddy manner, with cupids and cherubs scattered about in careless confusion. To carry on the motif of airy summer days peopled with lightsome creatures of fairy gardens, the decorators painted the ceiling a bright blue, and then placed puffy white clouds here and there to represent the sky, with the smiling faces of wee angels and fairies peering out. The gallery was built to get money, and not to give any particular comfort to those who paid their penny or so to sit there, so that the heads of the gallery sitters were in reality among the clouds. The actors had a great respect for this gallery, nevertheless, for its displeasure was manifested by booing in no uncertain tones, and the desire for the approval of the gallery provided the phrase "gallery gods."

PAINTED OVER COURT FINERY

Ruse by Which Nuns Had Queen Depicted as a Member of Their Religious Order.

Through a chance discovery in the garret of a ducal palace in Madrid, a three-hundred-year-old romance of a wonderful Velasquez has been revealed. Hidden for three centuries as a picture of a nun, this portrait of Queen Isabella of Spain, the first wife of King Philip IV, has recently been restored in London.

In the disguised picture practically nothing but the face and hands of the original was left uncovered, and the secret was first guessed at owing to the paint peeling away from the nun's hood, when there was revealed the fringe of a lace collar.

Princess Isabella of Bourbon was married to Philip in 1615, and in 1624 was staying in the convent of the nuns belonging to the order of the Descalzas. As a mark of the kindness she there received she presented the nuns with this Velasquez portrait of herself.

Later Isabella wished to enter the convent, but the pope would not consent. The inmates of the convent called in a painter, and secretly instructed him to paint out the queen's court dress and the lace handkerchief in her left hand, and to present her in the complete garb of a professed nun.

Excellence Need Fear No Rival.
Multitudes of employees constantly live in terror of some one who, they fear, is after their place. They are suspicious of office politics, suspicious that somebody working close behind them is trying to crowd them out. What is the result? This fear and suspicion interferes with their advancement to the place above them. Instead of looking back and thinking of the men after their place they should, instead, look about to the man above them, and be prepared for an advance when there is a vacancy. Perfect yourself in your line of work and you need never have any fear of others' rivalry. There is always room at the top for the man or woman who has stamped the trademark of individuality, superiority and distinctiveness upon his or her work. Such a one need have no fear of the usurpation of his rights by others. His position is assured.—Orison Sweet Marden in the New Success.

In Algerian Bazaars.

Cobbled steps mark the ways of the Moors in the Kasbah, the native quarter of Algeria, and once the traveler leaves the streets where street cars clang and Europeans walk, he must climb. Pepperpods and onions hang in rosaries beside bazaars. Mosques are hidden here and there in nests of houses, and cafes are open to the street with the guttural gossip of the Arab drinkers and the click of dominoes drifting outward.

Sandals of leather, laced and filled with golden threads, are made by black-eyed Arab girls with long, soft eyelashes. Some of these girls are only twelve years old, but married; and they sit on carpets, twittering through their veils at passersby, meanwhile embroidering deftly the things they have to sell for gold.—Century Magazine.

First Girl Ever Photographed.

While France claims to have invented photography through the genius of Daguerre, the painter, America is proud of the fact that it was one of her sons who photographed the first face.

After years of patient labor Daguerre succeeded in taking sunlight pictures of scenery on a sensitive plate.

This was in 1839, and a year later

Prof. John W. Draper of New York took a photograph of his sister Dorothy, the first person to have her likeness reproduced on a prepared background with the help of the sun's rays.

It took an hour to take the photograph, and the picture may still be seen.

Their Occupation.

A little five-year-old miss was visiting in the country, and was sent to the barn, where some men were shearing sheep, to look for her brother. She soon returned without him and said: "He ain't there; ain't nobody there only some men peelin' sheep."

Morality and Religion.

Morality without religion is only a kind of dead reckoning—an endeavor to find our place on a cloudy sea by measuring the distance we have run, but without any observation of the heavenly bodies.—Longfellow.

Sardines Amusing Themselves.

Little Dick was visiting his aunt, and seeing a goldfish for the first time was greatly amused and puzzled. Finally, running to his aunt, he exclaimed, gleefully: "Oh, auntie, de sardines is walking in de water!"

Costly Smile for Someone.

Among types of humor is the humor of the types. Example: The "expansive smile" of a certain "wizard of finance" got printed "expensive smile" in a local contemporary—rather a happy chance hit.

For Safety's Sake.

It is a good thing that castor oil doesn't taste as nice as ice cream. If it did the kids would drink the whole bottle. And that would never do.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Chuckles in Court.

In a Rhymney valley police court it turned out that a defendant shot a pigeon, the property of a Mr. Fowler, and evidence was given by Mr. Bird.

Queer, but True.

Do right a thousand times and you will never hear of it. Do wrong once and you will hear of it a thousand times.—Unidentified.

London's Fine Public Buildings.

Our First Equestrian Statue.

The first equestrian statue in the United States was that of General Jackson in Washington, erected in 1853.

Machine Worth Having.

"The typewriter will never be perfect," says the Syracuse Herald, "until it can go ahead and write something without somebody telling it what to say." Which reminds us of what Kipling in his livelier days wrote as a testimonial for a certain machine. "I just start the typewriter off with a line," he said; "then I go out for a walk; and when I return there is the poem all written."—Boston Transcript.

Substitutes for Jade.

Recognition of the serious rise in the cost of jade is shown in the substitutes that are being made for it. The best of these is a composition in which crystal with other minerals is used, and a beautiful material of a beautiful, clear shade of green is the result. There are imitations, with pendants in the form of jade ornaments, made of celluloid, colored a deep green.

Life's Best Task.

Life calls upon us to fill the place of men and women in the ranks of courageous world workers—gives us manifold jobs in the service of our fellow men. Every weak turning aside from these tasks is traitorous to our own self-respect. If we shrink because the work is hard, we forfeit our own respect and that of everyone who knows us.—Orison Sweet Marden in Chicago News.

You Must Believe This.

Perhaps the most remarkable freaks of lightning was that related by John Still, the famous bishop of Wells. A storm broke over Wells cathedral during a service. Afterward the bishop, his wife and many members of the congregation found themselves marked with a cross on various parts of the body. Nor a soul was injured by the lightning.

Stretch Out the Wrinkles.

A surgeon of Paris has made a woman of twenty-five by making small incisions behind the ears and on the scalp and stretching the skin as you would stretch a carpet, and her new youthful beauty is expected to last for eight or ten years, if she doesn't smile, or frown, or cry too much.

Absurd Old English Law.

Under the English common law no one has a right to bathe in the sea. This was decided by the courts a hundred years ago, and an attack on the decision at the beginning of this century failed to upset it, the higher court deciding that in the strict legal sense one could fish in the sea but could not bathe in it.

The word "gob" is very old in the British navy, where it has been used from time immemorial. Sailors were called "gobblers" and soldiers were called "gobdies." The word "gob" in the language of the Northumbrian means mouth, and the expression is often heard as "hold your gob," meaning hold your tongue, or keep quiet. It is generally supposed that the word is of Irish origin. Gobs, gob ships and gobbie ships are known in the Scottish dialect. Dwelly, in his "Gaelic Dictionary," says that the gob is the pee, bill or point of an anchor; that is, the part beyond the fluke.

Busy Swatting Flies.

I was a guest at a Sunday school picnic, and everything went off nicely until we sat down to supper. I had the seat of honor between the minister and his son. We had the tables set outside, and the flies were thick. A fly never lives when I am around, so I stood up and started to swat. You can imagine my embarrassment when I felt a kick under the table. The minister was saying grace and every one had their heads bowed while I was busy swatting flies. No more Sunday school picnics for me!—Chicago Tribune.

At a big railway station a four-year-old youngster wonderingly watched the man step out on the balcony and call the stations of the outgoing train through a megaphone. When the announcer finished and resumed his seat the youngster pulled at his mother's hand. "Oh, mamma," he said, "ask the man to sing another song!"

Just Like Home.

Mother and I went into a drug store and ordered chocolate sundaes. When finished I piled up the dishes, as I had been taught to do at home, and carried them to the counter. Of course, everyone smiled and I realized what I had done. It didn't take me long to get out of the store.—Exchange.

How Gasoline Destroys.

The bureau of biological survey says that practically all insect life obtains its supply of oxygen through little holes in the body. When such oily substances as gasoline come in direct contact with these pests it is impossible for them to breathe, and death shortly ensues.

Forceful Expressions.

Why in addition to other distinctive features the rant of insanity should attach to the climax of lechery is quite incomprehensible, but "as crazy as a bed bug" implies the imperative need of an alibi, while "as crazy as a coot" is equally forcible.

ANCIENT AND MODERN LIGHT

Notes of Electricity Today Read With a Smile of the "Link Boy" of Old England.

A couple of centuries ago permanent street lights in the large cities of the world were almost unknown. In old England "link boys," carrying torches, were hired, by gentlemen to light the way for them when they went out in the evening in London. When lamp posts were placed in the city streets the link boys' occupation was gone. With progress of time lanterns lighted by candles or by oil were succeeded by gas or by electric lights. Every city of the civilized world normally has its principal streets lighted at night, and the link boy today is as superfluous as the sedan chair.

In a similar way the famous caves of the world, such as the Mammoth cave of Kentucky and Luray cavern in Virginia were formerly lighted by candles carried by guides who conducted travelers. But today practically all these subterranean places that are visited by sightseers are equipped with electric lights, and instead of carrying a bag of candles the guide merely turns on or off a series of electric switches as he conducts a party through the cave.

Railroad tunnels were formerly unlighted, excepting the lights in the trains that passed through them, but today tunnels, as well as stations, are lighted by electricity.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

SHOW NAMED FOR A VALLEY

Quite a Few of Those Who Use the Word "Vaudeville" Are Ignorant of Its Origin.

The Fairest Lady turned to her escort at the variety show the other night during the intermission and asked him where the word "vaudeville" came from anyway.

"Movies" is simple, she said. Anyone can trace the origin of the word coined by Young America and now generally used. The British "cinema" applied to cinematograph pictures is also easily traced.

It wasn't until next day that the escort, who had pretended not to hear the Fairest Lady's question about vaudeville, got a chance to look it up. Then he found that the word came from the French "Val de Vire"—a valley in Normandy where originated many humorous and satirical drinking songs that became popular all over France—known by the name of the place of their origin. Eventually the word became corrupted to "vaudeville" and was applied to a certain kind of popular song. Its application was limited to such songs until the end of the eighteenth century, when it began to refer also to an entertainment that included singing and dialogue as well as dancing and variety acting.

Failure Is the Final Test.

Real winners in life never show the white feather. They are like the drummer boy in our Civil war, who, when his regiment was being mowed down still kept pushing ahead, beating an advance. When ordered to beat a retreat, the boy replied that he had never learned how—he had only been taught to beat an advance.

The finest type of manhood is never overwhelmed or entirely dismayed no matter what comes. If a man of this kind loses property, if his ambition is thwarted and his plans demolished his spirit remains undaunted, his courage, his resistance and his self-confidence are undiminished, and he can start again. Many a man has been made by his failures, because he used them as a stepping stone for his advance.

Failure is the final test of persistence and an iron will; it either crushes a life or solidifies it.—Orison Swett Marden in the New Success Magazine.

There are many quaint expressions peculiar to New England, some of which are heard only in Rhode Island or in places where their use has been perpetuated by former residents of this locality.

"Woo't you take off your things?" is a common invitation to the caller in this state, though in some parts of the country it would be unusual. When a housewife changes her abode, she moves her "things," and when going on a journey, she packs her "things" in a grip.

In the south county it frequently rains "pitchforks" and sometimes "cats and dogs." The most intensive expressions of the native, however, are that it is "raining like all Sam Hill" or like "all possessed."—Boston Globe.

A Regular Stunt.

That the aviator today can do anything a bird can do. Yes, sir, they've got the thing down so fine that there isn't a bird alive that has anything on them.

Fitzgerald—Zatso? Well, when you see an aviator fast asleep hanging onto a branch of a tree with one foot, then I'll come and take a look.—American Legion Weekly.

Time's Whirligig.

Old Horse—Remember how the automobiles, when they came into prominence, laughed at us for poking along?

Buggy—Yep, but then was happy days.

Old Horse—Now it's a case of the automobile laughing at the automobiles.

FAMOUS DOORS OF HISTORY

Marvel of Workmanship Seen on Many of Those of Churches of the Old World.

Among the famous doors of history are the carved wooden doors of the church of Santa Sabina, Rome, depicting in relief, scenes from the Old and New Testaments. These are one of the most remarkable examples of early Christian sculpture extant.

In the earliest times, as in Babylon, doors swung on sockets instead of hinges.

In Roman days wooden doors were decorated with bronze and inlaid, and throughout the Middle Ages richly carved doors of wood adorned the churches.

In the Gothic period, wooden doors were decorated with wrought-iron hinges which were often elaborated into intricate ornamentation covering a large part of the door.

The doors of the cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris of the thirteenth century are the finest examples of this class.

During the Renaissance in Germany and France, elaborately carved doors were among the most beautiful products of wood sculpture.

Some of the old English doors were formed of narrow planks placed side by side and in dwelling houses generally, in the Middle Ages the doors were small and fairly simple, meant for strictly practical purposes and often provided with some means of defense.

The doors of the Norman period were round headed, while with the thirteenth century, came the doorway with the pointed arch and later the flattened arch. In the case of interior doors, splendid old polished mahogany doors were important features in some old English homes and there were old oak doors of wonderful beauty, especially when found in oak-paneled rooms.—From the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

SAMPLE OF DUTCH THRIFT?

Hollanders Said to Be Greatest People in the World to Abbreviate Written Words.

The Dutch are the greatest people in the world for abbreviations, says the Detroit News. It seems to be a national trait of the Hollander, and not only are the missives between Newrouw and her daughter and Mynheer and his son liberally sprinkled with the shortening of Dutch as she spoke, but the advertisements in the Dutch newspapers are also thrifflily abbreviated so as to permit of the maximum amount of expression with the minimum of type.

Private correspondence as well as business correspondence in Holland is a network of abbreviation, so much so that a Hollander who has not been in his native land for a good many years, but still retains a knowledge of his mother tongue is likely to fall by the wayside in reading a letter from an old friend from whom he has not heard in a long time.

The Dutch lover is quite accustomed to be told in a letter by his sweetheart how much she loves him in abbreviations that suggest more a Russian stock ticker news item than the love-laden words of a romantic maid.

Which Way Do You Sleep?

Do you sleep with your body lying from east to west or are your toes pointing southeast while your head lies northwest? If you are lying in this position you are under the pressure of the magnetic meridian. In other words, you are sleeping under a tension and there's a bad effect on the blood pressure and the pulse rate. "Change your bed with the head north or south and you'll sleep better."

These are some of the theories propounded by Dr. W. W. Bailey of Dayton, O., secretary of the Central Society of Physical Therapeutics, which held its convention in Chicago a short time ago. The convention was made up of licensed doctors of the Middle West who rely more on physical methods of curing diseases than on medical methods.

Pigs Squeal for Squalls.

Animals will often tell us all we want to know about the weather.

Watch your dog. If he refuses food in the morning, and is found subsequently chewing grass on the lawn, a downpour may be anticipated. Sheep will scatter far and wide over a hillside during fair and settled weather, but prefer to huddle together under shelter when a storm approaches. Some people say that the higher the sheep on the hillside, the finer the weather.

If cattle go reluctantly to pasture in the morning, or lie down early in the day, bad weather is imminent, as it is when the morning's milk supply is scanty, or the beasts themselves low and look at the sky.

Pigs, of course, are infallible barometers; they squeal and grunt incessantly when storms approach.

Egypt Grew Cotton in 200 B. C.

Cotton has been grown in Egypt since 200 B. C., but it was not until a hundred years ago that Jumel, a French engineer, suggested the introduction of the commercial varieties. In 1822 the famous American sea island cotton was the first sown. Five years later a Brazilian variety was introduced. The two strains were mingled and from them came the famous "Ashmound" plant and the still finer "Mutam," which is one of the most productive cottons in the world.

NEW IDEA IN MOTIVE POWER

Vertical Vanes Used in Windmills Foretell Possibility of Idleness in Any Weather.

Europe is facing a serious shortage of fuel, of all kinds. Coal, gas, gasoline, wood, alcohol—all these fuels are lacking. The result is that inventors have turned out in force to solve the power problem in new ways. A French inventor has developed a new form of windmill in which vertical vanes are used. The advantages of this form are said to be: Power—no matter in what direction the wind is blowing; noiseless operation; the windmill does not have to turn about, with consequent loss of time; there is no danger from strong winds or gales; it develops five times the power derived from usual forms of windmills; there is practically no upkeep or operating expense. The builder says that he is ready to undertake the building of such windmills in all capacities from one-half to 100 horse power and over. The windmill is recommended to be run in connection with an electric generator and storage battery, so that, when the wind is blowing, electrical energy is stored up for use during the calm weather. However, it is estimated that the windmill can operate in practically any weather, and but very few idle days are encountered throughout the year, writes Hereward Carrington in Leshe's. This windmill may prove of the greatest practical value to many farmers and those desirous of obtaining power cheaply and easily.

PROOF OF TRUE FRIENDSHIP

What More Could Be Asked of Any Man Than the Sacrifice That Is Here Recorded?

There are various ways of evidencing true friendship. Sorrow and suffering bring out the best in others, but it is our habit to be sympathetic and not always does it prove that sympathy and friendship are akin. When a man will lend you money without collateral he is indeed a friend.

But we find our true friends in other ways. The other day we were in a hurry and we needed a hair cut. So we beat it into our favorite barber shop to find our favorite barber busy, and a man ahead of us.

We were about to depart without the trim we sorely needed, when the man ahead of us spoke up:

"You always have the same barber, don't you?"

"Yep," we replied.

"Well, I'm next for his chair, but I'm in no hurry. You just go ahead and take my turn. I'll wait."

There was friendship for you, and as we thanked him for his kindness we couldn't help remarking:

"Greater love hath no man than this, that he will give up his place in a barber shop for another."—Exchange.

Attention, Diogenes.

Diogenes, wake up!

Here's your honest man! Right here in Houston, recently, a man entered the consolidated railway ticket office and purchased a ticket for a child more than five years old. Then he promptly tore the ticket up.

It developed that a woman, accompanied by a child, departed from Houston within the last few days for a city more than 1,000 miles away, but did not obtain transportation for the child.

When the ticket was bought the purchaser was asked when the party was going. He replied, "They have already gone."

Then it developed that the man, conscience-stricken at the thought of cheating the railroads out of the cost of a child's ticket, decided to follow the old adage, "Better late than never."—Houston Post.

Unconventional.

An old woman from Sullivan county came to a recent convention held at Indianapolis. Now, never before had she attended a convention, and she had very strange ideas of conventions—such as to thinking that they were made up of banquets, parties, etc. But this one was just a line of lectures, lectures, lectures. And the old lady did not like it at all.

At the close of the last day she went back to her hotel, weary, disappointed and hungry. She saw another delegate and began to talk to her of the week's lectures. "No, indeed, I have not liked this," she said emphatically, "and more than that, I knew I shall never be a conventional woman."—Indianapolis News.

A "call," in market parlance is a contract giving the purchaser the option to buy a commodity or security at a fixed price, within a fixed time. It is used in speculation in grain, cotton, stocks and foreign exchange. When German marks, for example, are selling for 1.6 cents, a broker will sell for $35 the privilege of buying 25,000 marks, within nine months, at 5.6 cents each. If the price within that period goes above 5.6 cents, the holder of the call can purchase at that price and sell at the prevailing market price, and have the difference as a profit. If the price does not reach the quotation named in the "call," the money spent for it is lost.

An Effort at Logic.

"You say you want equal opportunity for everybody?" said the man who tries to be fair.

"I do," answered the anarchist.

"And you are protesting against injustice?"

"I am."

"Then why don't you give the innocent bystander a chance for his life when you plant a bomb?"

Air Travel.

Some enthusiasts express the opinion that eventually it will be cheaper to travel by air than on the surface.
For one thing, no expensive railway tracks are needed, but terminal stations are a prime necessity. However, it will be a long time before rail-

Physicians Indorse Pies.

A study of how the stomach digests pies, puddings and cakes, made by a group of Philadelphia physicians, was published in the American Journal of Physiology (Baltimore). The general conclusion to which they came is that the pies are taken in the stomach more readily than cakes, and puddings more readily than either.

Spanish Dancers.

There is one nice thing about a group of Spanish dancers. They enjoy it so much themselves. Always merry and laughing and calling out little pleasantries to each other, clapping their hands and stamping their feet. But why, in the name of Edgar W. Cervantes, don't they learn some new steps?—Life.

Embarrassing.

Where Icebergs Originate.

The source of practically all the icebergs of the arctic and sub-arctic regions is Greenland. Owing to the northward set of the West Greenland currents the bergs of this side are carried first to the north and it is only at about the seventy-fourth or seventy-fifth parallel of latitude that they begin to make their way westward to come down on the Atlantic side.

Cradle Boards.

There are nine different kinds of cradle boards used by the various tribes of North American Indians.
The Eskimos did not use such a board.
The baby was wrapped in the hood of the mother's fur coat. In the most southern tribes the baby was merely bound to the mother's back by a strip of cloth long enough to hold it.

Foolish, Indeed.

When Billy returned from inspecting the new twins next door he looked admirably at his birthday cake that auntie was frosting, and remarked:
"Wasn't them kids foolish to be in such a hurry to go and get burned the same day! Now they kin only have one birthday, an' they might have had two."

With Reservations.

Our pastor remarked in his searching yesterday that he often fears some members of his flock, if they prayed exactly as they feel, would phrase it this way: Lead us not into temptation, unless the chance is exceptionally good and no one's around.

Life's Preparation for Death.

Life is more important than death.
In fact, the work of death can only be safely done in life. The practical truth is that which touches us at once, the most sober and solemn view of life, that every single thing we do is actually making death either harder or easier.—Faber.

Romans Had Barber's Shops De Luxe.

When shaving first came into vogue
among the ancient Romans, the barbers' shops became places of great resort, oftentimes music, on different instruments, being played for the entertainment of waiting customers.

Somewhat Hard to Believe.

In the department of Seine-et-Marne, France, some years ago a picture of a cow she was herding was printed on a peasant girl's breast by a flash of lightning. The cow was killed, but the girl recovered. An Italian sailor, killed by lightning as he sat near the mast, had upon his back a print of a horseshoe that was nailed to the mast.

Cut-Rate Operation.

Billy lived next door to us. One day while he was playing with some other boys I noticed that he had his hair cut very short. He saw that I watched him and he ran over to me and said: "Oh, Alice, I got baldheaded yesterday on a sale for 20 cents."—

Average Length of Human Life.

The average duration of human life is about thirty-three years. Statistics show that one-fourth of the people of the earth die before the age of six years, one-half before they reach their sixteenth birthday, and only one person of each hundred born lives to be sixty-five.

The Same Bunch.

At a recital in one of the churches little Joe played a piece and carried a bouquet to one of the little girls who played. Later, another bouquet was sent to one of the players and Joe piped out, "Why, that's the same bunch of flowers that I took up."

The Silver Rule of Life.

"Speak no evil of any man, only good," would if practiced by all men
all the time, work a marvelous revolution in social relations, one most needed to create mutual confidence, now
very much needed.

Practice System.

Be systematic—the thought, the plan, the energy, the success of your day is measured in value by your application of each—of system.—George rel organs are either absolutely for-bidden or their players are under se-

PAINTED IN FIVE MINUTES

London Newspaper Tells of Meritorious Pictures Made Quickly by Traveling Artist.

While great painters have spent weeks—perhaps months—on a simple study, a young artist is turning out delightful views of the sea and country in five minutes, says London Answers. Impossible as this sounds, it is a fact, and the artist in question is Albert Croukshaw of Manchester.

It was an extremely dull day, with dark clouds overhead, when a crowd of holiday makers stopped to watch a smart looking man, mounted on a platform, transforming a plain piece of canvas into a marvelous scene of beauty. Every one forgot the dark, gloomy atmosphere as they were transported, first, to a beautiful spot in North Wales, and then to a picturesque castle. And it was all done in 10 minutes.

They were pictures to be proud of, too, painted with taste and an eye to the artistic. As fast as they were painted so were they sold to the admiring audience.

There is no doubt that there will be a great demand for "rapid" artists in the near future, when we get some of those promised houses built, and undoubtedly the economical housewife will be on the lookout for good, cheap pictures to beautify the walls of her domain. She need search no further than the traveling artist, who will complete a picture in five minutes and charge less for it than almost any art dealer.

Here, too, is an opportunity for any discharged soldiers who are artistically inclined. In a neat little hand book issued by the traveling painter they will find all the businesslike methods explained clearly and simply. It is a really useful short cut to rapid painting.

MOTION PICTURES IN ITALY

Development of Industry in That Country Makes it Second Only to the United States.

The production of motion pictures, says the United States commerce report, is an industry for which physical conditions in Italy and the Italian temperament are peculiarly favorable, and consequently this branch of activity early attained a high degree of development. Italy now claims to rank second to the United States among the nations of the world in the manufacturing of motion pictures. An idea of the importance of this industry in the economic life of the country can be derived from the fact that the working capital employed is now estimated at 300,000,000 lire and the actual capital invested at 100,000,000 lire. There are eighty-two companies engaged in the production of films, of which the greater number are located at Rome, which naturally presents unusual advantages from the scenic standpoint. The annual production of new films in Italy has reached 1,600,000 meters, and if it is estimated that forty copies are made from each negative the total of printed films is 64,000,000 meters.

Stage's Debt to Minstrelsy.
The stage is indebted to minstrelsy for Joseph Jefferson, Stuart Robson, Edwin Adams, Edwin Booth, Tony Pastor, Bob Hart, Robert Downing, P. T. Barnum, Patrick Gilmore and Sousa. John Philip Sousa was a member of Simmons and Slocum's minstrels when Al G. Field was serving his apprenticeship with that company. Johnny Hyams of McIntyre and Hyams, was a minstrel with the Al G. Field company. Singer Colono of the Metropolitan Opera company was popular with Collins when a tenor with the Al G. Field minstrels. George M. Cohan, Willie Collier, Chauncey Olcott, Eddie Foy, Francis Wilson, Frank Daniels, Jimmie Powers and Al Jolson all graduated from the minstrel stage.—New Orleans Item.

The Hebrews, Hindus and Mohammedans, as a part of their religion, are required to keep the body clean by frequent ablutions and baths and this has had a far-reaching effect upon the healthfulness of those people. When the Roman empire fell, the magnificent system of baths, which its people had used for cleanliness of body, soon lapsed into decay. Only in Spain, under the Moors, was the system of bathing kept up. There, to conform to the religious rites of Islam, luxurious baths were maintained, but when the Moors were expelled the misguided pious people razed to the ground these remnants of heathenism.

Probably Oldest Industry.
The impending sale of Brandon Park, an estate of 2,000 acres on the Norfolk-Suffolk (Eng.) borders, recalls what is probably the oldest and most enduring industry in the world—flint working.

At Brandon the first flint working industry has been carried on for several thousand years. A small colony of workers is still making gun flints there and exporting them to savage tribes in Northern and Central Africa. It is said that these workmen are lineal descendants of the flint workers of the neolithic age.

Sowing Down Production.
"How do you like the new hired man?"
"I like him first rate," replied Farmer Courtosel.
"But I've got my doubts about whether we can afford to keep him. He talks so interesting about political economy and things that everybody wants a quit work an' listen."
